La sociedad es una asociación, no se puede decir que una mujer no puede hacer determinado trabajo porque el machismo nos dice que no". Este es uno de los principales mensajes que está compartiendo a través de su cuenta oficial de Instagram la actriz y mexicana Claudio Báez, quien ayer presentó su asociación a través de su cuenta en la red social. La idea surgió alrededor de una conversación con un amigo, quien le dijo que era machista porque siempre la mandó a defenderse con las feministas y le dijo que en México no se debe defenderse contra los machistas. "Le pregunté '¿hay alguna forma que una mujer pueda defenderse?', y mi amigo contestó que sí. Entonces me pregunté '¿qué pasa con las feministas?'; 'yo soy una, él otra, pero cada vez que cambio de trabajo, la mujer se queda con la vieja'" Explica Báez que en la sociedad mexicana "el machismo nos hace reaccionar muy mal, la sociedad es una asociación, no se puede decir que una mujer no pueda hacer determinado trabajo porque el machismo nos dice que no". "Es decir, que sí puede hacer determinado trabajo pero no debe, y que le va mal, porque si no lo hace bien se van a hacer los machistas. No estamos hablando de decir que hay que salir de la tierra, pues no; pero sí sí se debe

II, Chinese: 帝国时代 II; Pinyin: Lúgé Jiéhóu Mèng Wǒwán)[1] was a joint promotion by Koei's various real-time strategy companies (ParaGame, Koei's real-time strategy subsidiary), and the Art and Fantasy Development Studio, which produced this action role-playing game and its technical component. Playing the game uses all the RTS elements, including the use of broadside missile barrages from cannon batteries, and included several highly graphically detailed animations of the player's generals. The game was initially released in China on November 16, 2005, and was released in the United States on October 14, 2007. Beijing Engine 2 was released on September 16, 2009 to the GTArcade Version 3.0 as well as the Windows Version 3.1. However, the Newgrounds version (which can play on any standards based video game platform) still supports the original game's engine until that date. Many different story line scenarios are available; each with different friends, buildings, resources and melee and ranged equipped troops. The side with a great amount of troops is considered the victor. The two sides have four heroes that are always on the field in all scenarios. These heroes are 3-star generals. With the help of the two generals and their infantry, one can turn the tide of any scenario. Beijing 2 was developed on the NetEase's cloud-based game platform iWall, with a modified version of the NetEase's "Beijing 2" engine. In total, around 350,000 servers have been used to develop the game, which is said to be 10% of the total platforms used. Beijing 2 was a success when it was released on GTArcade, and was the first in-browser game to become a title with a playable Windows version. The first Windows version was released on October 14, 2007 with a Mac-like interface. A few weeks later on November 2, a simplified interface was made available for the Macintosh OS X, which is similar to the original game, except the sound is much better and the memory requirements are significantly lowered. The king of China is set to fight many battles in the game. The game's story can be seen in a movie that was released on November 5, 2008. The movie contains many

SlaughterHouse is a skirmish-based strategy game for PC. It combines the elements of a classic turn-based strategy game, the Choose Your Own Adventure books, a personal manager, and a bestiary all in one. SlaughterHouse is a game in which players take the role of grey gory monsters who go out into the blood-soaked streets of 16th century England to lay waste to the townsfolk. Players start their adventure in the forest, armed only with a sword and a pouch of pick-me-up stones and just a little scrap of unholy tissue. Players travel across an evolving map and encounter other monsters including werewolves, ghouls, zombies and more while discovering the bestiary as they slay the creatures of the night. As they progress through their journey they will encounter towns, landmarks and even characters whose fates they will be able to affect. Cards bring the Choose Your Own Adventure element to the game by offering a series of randomised scenes for players to choose from. Players can explore a number of different paths through the game and not all experiences will necessarily be positive and may include things like losing a limb or being forced to burn, maim or dismember. But what does this game really consist of? SlaughterHouse is a PC game. You need a PC to play it. Most computers sold today are able to run this game just fine. The game consists of three parts. The first is the main game, which lasts for approximately five or six hours. The second and third parts are optional. You can play the game for any length of time you want, as the game has multiple paths to follow. The main part of the game is a choose your own adventure style game. By killing the inhabitants of a town (called Civs), players can discover locations, non-player characters, and unique events. There are four main types of scenes: Locations Combat Transitions Characters Each part of the game consists of several individual scenes. A scene can include any or all of the four elements. Some scenes are unlocked, while others are random. When in a scene you can either play it out as a normal battle, or take a scenic walk across the map. Combat In the combat section you will deal damage to the town, and most of the time you will encounter a group of enemies. You can play the battle in one of
