At least 10 people have been killed, six of them children, after shelling at a school in Ukraine near the restive eastern town of Mariupol, AFP reports. The escalation in fighting comes amid ongoing negotiations for a resolution between Kiev and the pro-Russia separatists in the region, held in Geneva at the weekend. "We were in class when we heard a blast and people began running out of the school," one of the children told AFP. "We don't know how many people were killed." The school was in the village of Zaitsevo, near Mariupol, where at least five shelling incidents have been reported in the past week. A cease-fire signed on December 13 to end the conflict in eastern Ukraine came into effect on Saturday. The Ukrainian government said the shelling at Zaitsevo was aimed at its position at a nearby crossing point, and at government buildings in the nearby town of Krasnohorivka, but rebels denied this. They have made no other comment. Vikings coach Mike Zimmer says he is confident that Minnesota will play again this season, but the coach isn't exactly sure when that will happen. "We're going to have a game. I'm going to tell you that right now. We're going to have a game," Zimmer said Sunday, one day after the team's final walkthrough. "But I don't know when that will be. If everything goes well and our players are healthy when we're able to get to practice, I'd assume we would start the season with a game. "But we're pretty confident and feel good about the season."

Using the extract function works, but I can not do it for a list of files. Thanks in advance! A:

This is another solution using map: Let's suppose you have a list of strings that are files. `files = ["a.txt", "b.txt", "c.txt", "d.txt"]`

You could do: `map(open, files) #`

`["open('a.txt', 'r')", "open('b.txt', 'r')",`

`"open('c.txt', 'r')", "open('d.txt', 'r')"]` Q: Git -

Updating remote, pushing new branches, local, do not synchronize I have repo with some branches (deployment, stage etc.) and I need to update master and stage branches to the latest one. But my problem is that if I run `git push origin master -f`, I can't update master since it's up to date. If I run `git push origin stage -f`, then it pushes all the branches to my remote. However if I run `git push origin stage branch branch-name` it works fine, except it overwrites stage and deployment branch and also deletes old deployment branch in repo on server. A: Change it in `.git/config`: `[remote`

But, at least you have another perspective. One of the more troubling aspects of the post-9/11-security state was the unprecedented growth in the number of federal agencies and programs, including the Department of Homeland Security, designed to deal with the impacts of terrorism and related risks. How could such a large endeavor work? Only in America, the land of independent contractors, could one person play the roles of lawgiver, warrior, jack-of-all-trades, and, of course, chief law enforcement
