Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a method for detecting the signal state of a predetermined portion of a signal received from an electrical appliance using a separate test signal input to the same input terminal as the signal received from the appliance.

2. Description of the Related Art Generally, when manufacturing electrical appliances such as communication appliances, household appliances and the like, there are tests for detecting the electrical performance of those electrical appliances, such as the signal level of each portion of a communication circuit, such as a receiver circuit. The purpose of the test is to ensure the electrical performance. FIG. 6 shows an example of an existing detection method. A reference voltage  $V_{REF}$  is applied to a predetermined portion of a test circuit of an electrical appliance. An input terminal T1 of the test circuit is connected to an input terminal of the electrical appliance. The test circuit compares a signal received from the input terminal T1 of the electrical appliance with the reference voltage  $V_{REF}$ , and output a result indicating that the signal level of the predetermined portion is equal to or higher than the reference voltage  $V_{REF}$ . As shown in FIG. 6, in this example, the test circuit has an amplitude-detecting circuit used for determining the signal level of the predetermined portion of the signal received from the electrical appliance and has an amplifier 595f342e71
